Why play golf?

It's a game that burns up calories, reduces cholesterol and can reduce stress.

Playing golf is not only physically good for you, it also releases powerful, natural, mood enhancing drugs called endorphins into your bloodstream.

Golf offers a mental challenge. All that mental exercise is good for you.

Golf is a social game, a chance to get to know someone better or meet somebody new.

The etiquette and rules of golf encourage care and respect of others and the course.
